Andrew Treanor Appointed CEO
Scott Morrison Named Executive Chairman

BATON ROUGE (Feb. 6, 2025) — JM Test Systems, a leading provider of test equipment and calibration services, announced today that Andrew Treanor has been named Chief Executive Officer. Treanor succeeds longtime CEO Scott Morrison, who will continue to support the company's strategic and growth priorities as Executive Chairman.

JM Test was founded nearly 43 years ago by Ed Morrison who saw a need for reliable vendors that provide best-in-class service, quality, and accuracy for test equipment. Scott Morrison became CEO in 1998, and has led JM Test Systems to record revenue and growth. Today, the company has grown to over 500 employees serving nearly 10,000 customers in all 50 states — a testament to the Morrison family's leadership and the strength of the business.

"It's been a privilege to serve as CEO for the past 22 years," said Morrison. "I can't think of a better leader than Andrew to drive our continued success and growth. Partnering with Kanbrick has added tremendous value to our business and will continue to provide the capacity and expertise we need to pursue acquisitions and growth opportunities to better serve our customers."

Treanor brings extensive experience in leading and scaling businesses, with a strong background in driving innovation and operational excellence.

Prior to JM Test Systems, Treanor served as CEO of Pampered Chef, a Berkshire Hathaway company, where he led the transformation of the company's operations, global sourcing, and technology systems.

"It's an honor to serve and lead as CEO of JM Test," said Treanor. "It's an incredible company with a wonderful team that is passionate about serving our customers. I truly admire what the Morrison family has built over the last four decades, and I'm committed to preserving the best of their legacy while growing the business and our offerings to support customer needs."

JM Test Systems was acquired by Kanbrick, a long-term investment firm for midsize businesses, in 2023. Over the past two years, JM Test has achieved record sales and profitability, while delivering exceptional customer service. The company continues to focus on expanding their presence and impact across North America through new locations and acquisitions.

"We're grateful for Scott's partnership and leadership, and we couldn't be more impressed by how he built JM Test into an impactful business during his 22 years as CEO," said Tracy Britt Cool, Co-Founder of Kanbrick. "We are excited for this next phase of growth with Scott as Executive Chairman and Andrew as CEO. Andrew is a proven leader, and we are confident he is the right person to lead JM Test through the next phase of growth."
